THOUSANDS OF SMALL CALIFORNIA BUSINESSES WILL BE HARMED BY AB 178 (SKINNER and CALDERON)

WE OPPOSE AND URGE YOUR “NO” VOTE

Dear Assembly Member,

On behalf of our tens of thousands of online advertising, affiliate publisher partners in California, we urge you to oppose AB 178.

LinkShare Corporation is a leading global provider of the technology, services and distribution e-retailers need to create, manage and optimize successful affiliate marketing programs. LinkShare empowers clients with the ability to collaborate with affiliate marketing partners online and develop cost-efficient pay-for-performance advertising campaigns.

AB 178 is of great concern to us and our clients because when a similar bill was passed in New York State, hundreds of online merchants terminated their relationships with thousands of affiliates in order to avoid collecting New York State sales tax. This directly resulted in a significant decrease in revenue for small affiliate marketing and advertising businesses in New York.

As you consider AB 178, we believe it is important for you to understand the people and faces behind affiliate marketing and advertising and the impact passage of AB 178 will have on their businesses. At LinkShare, we know that our community of affiliates is composed of some of the most talented small business entrepreneurs around.

Attached are profiles of six of our small business, affiliate publishing partners. One is from California. The other five are from other states, but we believe these profiles illustrate the breadth and depth of affiliate marketing in California.

Ben Chui, a California small business entrepreneur:

When Ben Chui started Ben's Bargains in January 2000, he was a sophomore at UC Berkeley looking to make some extra money. Five years later, his site, BensBargains.net, not only supported him in earning his undergrad degree, but also funded his Masters in Mechanical Engineering. Today, Ben is running the site full time, and has 2 employees.

Perhaps the most touching story of our profiles is that of Todd Martini:

In 1998, Todd Martini developed a web site to post photos of newborn daughter Alexandra so friends and family could see them. That all changed when Alex was diagnosed with Leukemia. To raise money for his daughter's multiple surgeries, he turned to the LinkShare affiliate program for help. Today, AlexsCoupons.com has 214 LinkShare merchants, who play a key role in helping the Martini family pay the massive bills related to Alex's treatment, and sustain her miracle recovery.

Both Ben and Todd manage coupon websites. They are no different than the weekly coupon circular in the local Sunday newspaper or a local value pack mailer, except both Todd and Ben publish these coupons on the web.

Like Ben and Todd, all affiliate marketers work within an advertising model that allows small businesses to display advertising on behalf of retailers whom they normally would not have exposure to without with an advertising agency. The affiliates do not own the customers nor do they transact a sale.

AB 178 attempts to establish that a California nexus is created when any out of state retailer who generates in excess of $10,000 in annual referral based sales enters into any marketing agreement with a California resident or business in exchange for commission or other consideration. Once nexus is established, AB 178 would require retailers that advertise and receive direct or indirect referrals from online advertising on websites to collect sales tax in California.

AB 178 singles out the small businesses of affiliate markers and this creates an extremely uneven playing field for them compared to other types of online and offline advertising. This will in turn, will reduce California-based affiliates' ability to compete with other forms of advertising, as well as affiliates in neighboring states.

Perhaps the best way to illustrate this is an example. Imagine the newspaper weekly circular mentioned above. The agency that creates the ads in the circular does not create a nexus; neither does the newspaper running the ads. However, under AB 178, someone who places pay for performance advertising on a website creates a nexus.

In New York State, tens of thousands affiliates were terminated from affiliate programs by merchants, and we expect the passage of AB 178 will have the same impact in California. This will mean lost revenue and lost jobs for California's small affiliate marketing, web publishing businesses. This will devastate these small, entrepreneurial businesses including Ben, Todd and the other affiliates featured in our profiles.

We urge you to read the attached profiles and take the time to understand affiliate marketing before you vote on AB 178. We have also attached a list of all the California cities where we have partnerships with affiliates for your review, so you can understand how many small advertising businesses will be impacted by this bill.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter. Again, we urge you to oppose AB 178 because of the impact it will have on small businesses in CA.

Sincerely,

Mark Kirschner
Chief Marketing Officer

BEN CHUI

IS A LINKSHARE AFFILIATE

I HAD A NEW DEGREE OF SUCCESS. When Ben Chui started Ben's Bargains in January 2000, he was a sophomore at UC Berkeley looking to make some extra money. Five years later, his site, BensBargains.net, not only supported him in earning his undergrad degree, but also funded his Masters in Mechanical Engineering. Today, Ben is running the site full time, and has 2 employees. LinkShare's easy technology, merchants who provide special incentives, and the ability to meet face to face at LinkShare events, have helped grow this hobby into a full fledged business.

MARTIE DUNCAN

IS A LINKSHARE AFFILIATE

IT WAS LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT. When Martie Duncan met her LinkShare Client Development Manager at the LinkShare Symposium, a powerful partnership was born. Martie's 3 year old business, Wedding Points, provides consumers points every time they shop with a WeddingPoints.com merchant that can be redeemed for gifts, or even a dream honeymoon. With LinkShare's help, Martie's team refined their merchant selection and increased traffic to their site. Today, we are working together to explore new ways to track offline purchases, so that Wedding Points members can not only get points for their wedding spending, but continue to earn points as married people for their everyday shopping. Thanks to LinkShare, Wedding Points is a business on the move.

AN EDITOR'S APPROACH. Back in 2001, Brad Wilson created a web site to help his family and fellow students at the University of North Carolina save money. Today, BradsDeals.com, with its unique editorial approach to presenting offers, handpicks the best values in online shopping for over one million loyal consumers each month. LinkShare's easy to use tools make it possible for Brad and his team to write and edit thousands of little stories based on offers from hundreds of LinkShare merchants. Thanks to LinkShare, this is one successful affiliate whose story is still being written.

AVOIDING THE FRUMP FACTOR. Michelle Madhok noticed that busy working moms often shopped for everyone in the family but themselves, resulting in "an unfortunate spiral into frumpiness." Determined to fix this, Michelle launched SheFinds.com in 2004 to help busy women discover the latest beauty and style finds. A stunning success, the editorially focused site, email and blog are growing fast. And thanks to the merchant relationships made possible by the LinkShare Network and enhanced through in-person meetings at LinkShare's live events, the site has also been profitable from the start.

ROBERT MARCUS

IS A LINKSHARE AFFILIATE

I RAN WITH AN IDEA. A casual runner who enjoys listening to music while running, Robert Marcus found that when music matched his pace, running was more fun. The idea of music-paced running was born. In 2005, Robert created JogTunes.com, a site with extensive lists of songs from LinkShare merchant Apple iTunes. Runners can choose the style of music they prefer and then select songs of any tempo to create the perfect soundtrack for any length of run. Today, Robert is adding LinkShare merchants in apparel and other running-related categories to capitalize on his growing traffic. Thanks to LinkShare, music-paced running is an idea that is off and running.
